

Utah team moves humanitarian efforts, doctors into Ukraine

Friday, March 18th 2022

Ukrainian man Yevgen Chornomordenko 34, reunites with his family at the border crossing in Medyka, Poland on Sunday, March 6, 2022.

Chonomordenko had been waiting for 11 days on the Polish side of the border for this wife, Alina, and two children to arrive from the Ukrainian capital, which had woken up to Russian shelling on Feb. 24. War had broken out at home just days after his arrival in the Polish city of Wroclow, near Germany, for a job installing solar panels. "I never believed war would start," Chornomordenko said. (AP Photo/Visar Kryeziu)

SALT LAKE CITY (KUTV) — A team from Utah providing humanitarian efforts to war refugees in Europe has moved from Warsaw, Poland to Lviv, Ukraine.

The August Mission, a local Utah non-profit, sent two team members to Warsaw on March 8. Since that time the team has spent significant time networking and finding ways to help.

MORE: National guardsman, former fireman leave for Poland to help refugees

The team was gathering volunteer doctors to push forward into clinics that have been established or identified in western Ukraine.

They were also working hard to build means of transporting goods across the border from Poland to Ukraine.

August Mission's leader, Bruce Roberts, said they will be sending two more teams before the end of the month to help push forward their humanitarian efforts.

ALSO: Utah non-profit sending team to Poland-Ukraine border to help with refugees